Welcome from the Chair

Nemonie Fulton

It is my pleasure to introduce the Early Years Strategic Plan for 2026-2030, which sets out our ambition, direction and priorities for the next four years. This plan represents an important milestone for the organisation, providing a clear and shared vision for the future and a framework through which we can continue to grow, strengthen our services and maximise our impact.

The development of this plan has been shaped by a comprehensive process of engagement and consultation, undertaken in partnership with Stratagem International and involving our Board, Senior Management Team (SMT), Strategic Leadership Team, staff, members and wider stakeholders. I would like to thank everyone who contributed their time, insight and experience to this process. Their perspectives have been invaluable in helping us reflect on our achievements, consider the challenges and opportunities ahead, and define our collective ambitions for the future.

A key outcome of this work has been the development of a revised Mission, Vision and Values, alongside seven interrelated Strategic Priorities that will guide our work over the period 2026–2030. Together, these provide a clear expression of who we are, what we stand for and what we aspire to achieve. They will help us communicate our purpose, impact and ambition consistently, both internally and externally, while ensuring that our decisions and actions remain focused on the outcomes that matter most.

I look forward to working with the Board, our leadership teams, staff, members and partners as we bring this strategy to life. I am confident that this Strategic Plan will provide the focus and direction needed to support our continued development and ensure that, over the next four years, we create lasting value and achieve a positive and enduring impact for the people and communities at the heart of our work.

Foreword from the Chief Executive

Pauline Walmsley

Our strategic planning process has led us to a revised mission, vision and set of values together with seven interconnected strategic priorities that will enable our organisation to strengthen and extend its impact over the next four years. Building on our 60 years in the field, our community development approach enables us to work across the ecosystem in which children, families, carers, providers and services exist.

We can engage and collaborate across multiple levels to strengthen the connections between family, early learning and care, community, education, health, financial administration and advocacy. These strategic priorities will help create the relationships and the conditions that enable children and families thrive.

Our Strategic Plan continues to be inspired by the thinking of Yuri Bronfenbrenner whose ecological approach reminds us that children's development is shaped, not only by what happens immediately around them, but by the relationships and the wider environments in which they live.

We are mindful that no single organisation can create the necessary conditions for children to thrive. Never before has it been more important that the relationships, connections and collaboration within our organisation, and with a wide range of partners are strong, healthy and focused on producing better outcomes for children, families and those who care for them and work with them.

At Early Years our values are at the heart of everything we do. We believe every child, family and carer deserves the opportunity to thrive. That's why we are committed to equity, making sure people get the support they need to achieve their potential. Leadership within Early Years and across the system is critical to ensuring that collaboration, innovation, inclusion and diversity are not simply values we describe, but ways of working that enable us to create greater impact and address inequity.

Our mission is to make a positive and lasting difference in children's lives. Our vision, a thriving and resilient society where all children flourish. Together, our mission, vision and values provide a concise framework for delivery and underpin our partnerships.

They connect our internal culture with our external impact and they support all of us to continue making a positive and lasting difference while working towards a thriving and resilient society where all children flourish.

I want to thank Strategem International, the wide group of members, stakeholders, staff and our Board for your generous contribution to this plan. The plan belongs to all of us and its success will depend on how we bring it to life through our leadership, our collaboration and our everyday decisions. I look forward to seeing what we can achieve together over the next four years.
